

The Noise, March 2017

“a pleasurable romp ... with a bit of gentle humor.”

“My Baby Can’t Parallel Park” is a gleeful, humorous song in a musical mode which might be characterized as Hippy Folk – think of Have Moicy! by the Unholy Modal Rounders, or Jesse Winchester in one of his lighter moods, or Pure Prairie league with just a little of the smoothness of James Taylor.

The title track is an appealing bit of 1920s hokum whimsy and “That Old Car” is a jaunty Western Swing styled number.

Sentimental tunes include “Our Kids Aren’t Kids Anymore,” “Low Tech” and the upbeat “Reality Check.” This is a pleasurable romp sure to appeal to people who appreciate folk songs with a bit of gentle humor.
